“ Prayers to the Avery and Eversole Family and Friends:
Right now we are at Erin’s memorial services with you in spirit. We have been so sad since we heard of the passing of such a dynamic, vibrant, beautiful and spiritual young woman whose life had essentially just begun. The sudden loss of a such a life force like Erin can causes stress in family relationships, and pain in a loved one’s heart and soul as well or it can draw everyone closer together as it has here, with your faith as the “glue”. The loss of a child, young mother, soul mate and sibling has to be one of the greatest losses any one can suffer. It is a tragedy no family should ever have to bear.

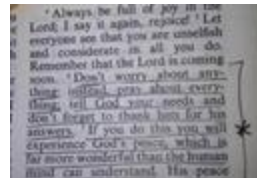

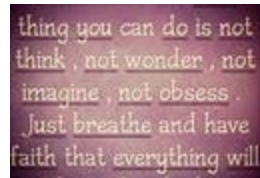

But there is light down the road and I pray that you may see it sooner vs later. I feel that Spirits are immortal, and while Erin is no longer with us physically, her essence is all around in your memories of her, the faces of her babies, pictures of her and whenever you sense and feel her around you, like possibly today during her memorial. Often one may notice something common is suddenly everywhere. About a week after my mom passed I started finding dimes everywhere. This went on for a few months & then became less and less often. Now whenever she is on my mind or I’m thinking of her a lot, I start finding dimes again for a while. Hopefully you too may find something that shows you that Erin’s spirit is watching over you.

There is not much that one can say to help you feel better. Just remember that Erin loved all of you and she is there for you in your memories, thoughts and prayers and is that little voice on your shoulder guiding you at times of indecision. She never wanted to leave you, especially her beloved Chris and her little angels Connor, Grayson and Scarlet. Please have faith that the intensity of your pain and grief will decrease with time, honest. Erin is at peace at the side of our loving creator, watching over all of her loved ones. Please remember that her sudden death could not be predicted, therefore not prevented. So please don’t let any “what ifs?” become an unnecessary burden among all else. I know you don’t know us well, but my words and wishes are sincere and I hope they are of some comfort to all of you. Our prayers and thoughts are with Chris, and the whole family and please remember than God only takes those he is ready for, even when we are not ready and it never makes any sense, only pain. Erin will live on through all of you, especially in the faces and spirits of her children as you keep her spirit alive in your memories and carry her with you always in your hearts. Her journey was short but full of love and life and that can not be taken from you and is part of her legacy.

We do wish for you all to heal quickly and reach a place where you are no longer dominated by grief, but where the memories can now bring smiles again instead of tears.

With faith and love, Kathy & Richard (Richmond) Czentorycki

“ I've been friends with Erin for years as we both became moms in December of 2010. I've never met her but definitely related to her life. We were both married to military men, we had three kids close in age, we had two sons and one daughter, we liked to sew, we were stay at home moms, and we were 31. I see her kids when I look at my own just as I see Chris when I look at my husband. Erin should be here to enjoy this beautiful life she created with Chris. She was beautiful inside and out and at the start of a new chapter with her daughter here and Connor beginning school. My sincerest condolences to the Averys and Eversoles. While my connection to the family has passed away, I hope to help out in the future along with the other Dec10 moms to ensure Chris and the kids have a fraction of the support that Erin gave us.

“ I am so very sorry for your loss:(. Erin was truly a kind, sweet, loving soul and she is greatly missed already'💔💔.

It was Erin who helped me through the difficult time with my Mothers cancer diagnosis and death this past March. She reached out to me almost every night to see how I was doing and if I needed anything. She was one of the most loving, caring, giving people I know. She was also a great friend to MANY and a wonderful Mother!!:) I hope you can find some Co fort during this very difficult time knowing how many lives Erin touched and how loved and appreciated she is.

Again, I am so very sorry for your loss and your families will remain our prayers.
