“ How does one describe such a wonderful person ? It's difficult because of all the good memories of Uncle Jim. His kindness, calmness, compassion, sense of humour and measured rationality enriched my life and many other lives immeasurably. Suffice it to say, these lives would have been much different without James Ward. This quote best describes him : "Sometimes, though very seldom... essence proves fully grown and fully developed in a man... and...unites everything that is serious and real..."
