“ Rudy and I had not shared a phone call, a letter in some years. But there is sometimes a special bond between cousins that keeps a connection strong between them in spite of miles and years. I learned of his death only after some frantic searching on the 'net because I had lost his address and my thoughts had suddenly focused on somehow touching base with him and once more knowing the happiness of conversation with a very special member of my family. My regret, of course, is that I waited too long . He lives on, as he always has, in my heart, my memories, our shared love of literature and travel.

“ He will be missed. He was my French Professor at Pembroke State University. He was a very kind person.

Rudy was my nephew whom I dearly loved. His death came as a shock for we all thought he would recover. I'm rather late in paying tribute to him but in my heart, he knows how much he was respected, admired and above all loved.
